

Jermaine Boone

*Data analyst and Data engineer for Baltimore City Government with a passion for youth empowerment, human psychology, and athletic performance development. With a background rooted in public service, Jermaine brings a unique perspective that blends strategic thinking, community engagement, and analytical problem-solving.

*Athletic Trainer He has developed custom training regimens, nutritional plans, and psychological support methods to prepare young athletes for elite performance.

Jermaine is also the founder of a new nonprofit organization aimed at revitalizing after-school programming in Baltimore City, creating safe, inspiring spaces for underserved youth to grow through sports, academics, and mentorship.

With long-term goals of launching a $250K data project called GameMind—a predictive engine for youth behavior and athletic potential—Jermaine is positioning himself at the intersection of sports, data, and human potential.